

Translation

The Association for the Rhetoric of Science, Technology, and Medicine

2019 National Communication Association Pre-Conference
 Wednesday, November 13
 8:30 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Baltimore Convention Center
 Room 348

Time	Activity	Participants
8:30 am	Registration Coffee and Tea Service Provided All-Gender Restroom Located Near Room 341
9:00 am	Welcome from Pre-Conference Planner	Emily Winderman, University of Minnesota ARSTM 1 st Vice President
9:05-10:20am	Panel #1: Theorizing Translation: What Can Translation Be?	Hayek’s Scientific History Retold: Translation as a Problematic Necessity Alexander W. Morales, University of Georgia Burke’s Unpublished Proposal for a Site of Reciprocal Translation S. Scott Graham, University of Texas, Austin Theorizing the Discursive Lacuna: The Case of Tamiflu Melissa L. Carrion, Georgia Southern University From Shifting Genres to Trojan Horses: Working with RSTM in a Large-Scale Scientific Project Zoltan P. Madjik, North Dakota State University How Translating Scales of Magnitude and Time Configure Public Engagement Nathan R. Johnson, University of South Florida Meredith A. Johnson, University of South Florida
10:20-10:30	Break
10:30-11:45	Panel #2: Stakeholders and Publics in Translation	Ethical Translations of Science to HIV Conspiracy Networks Miles C. Coleman, Rowan University Joy M. Cypher, Rowan University Lost in Translation: HIV, Gene Therapy, and the Sickle Cell Disease Community Craig Stewart, University of Memphis Amanda Young, University of Memphis

Translation

The Association for the Rhetoric of Science, Technology, and Medicine

		The Rhetoric of Infrastructure: Public Engagement with the Mundane Jordan Frith, Clemson University Kailan Sindelar, Clemson University Herpes in Translation: A Memetic Rhetorical Analysis of STI Communities on Tumblr Carleigh Davis, Missouri University of Science and Technology Gina Kruschek, Georgia Institute of Technology "Translation of "Wild Nature" for Stakeholders in the Outdoors" Charlotte Kämpf, Karlsruhe Institute of Technology Kenneth Baake, Texas Tech University
LUNCH On Your Own Coffee and Tea Service beginning at 1:00 pm
1:15-2:30	Panel #3: Translating Expertise	Translation and the Rhetorical Power of Medical Expertise: A Critical Examination of 'Medically Appropriate' Behavior Amy Koerber, Texas Tech University "Biopolitics and Early Modern England's Necro-Culture." Leslie R. Malland, University of Kentucky "Translation for/as Collaboration: A Techne for RSTM Engagement in Medical Education Research." Dawn S. Opel, Michigan State University Ella R. Browning, Bryant University Rendering a Child: Kairos, Mediation, and the Ultrasound Informed Consent Act J. Scott Wheedon, Texas Tech University
BREAK
2:45-4:00	Panel #4: Who Can (and Should) Translate?	Interdisciplinary Translational Work: Lessons Learned and Potential Solutions Emma Frances Bloomfield, University of Nevada, Las Vegas Translating at the Borders: The Translational Nature of Doctoral Writing in Interdisciplinary Life Sciences Sara Doody, McGill University

Translation

The Association for the Rhetoric of Science, Technology, and Medicine

		The Tick Problematic Kate Maddalena, William Peace University Genetic Engineering as Rhetorical Composition Elizabeth A. Pitts, University of Pittsburgh CRISPR, Hachimoji DNA, and Rhetoric Michael Zerbe, York College of Pennsylvania
4:00-4:45	Discussion Groups Synthesis Farewell	